Judge Wright Again.

Judge Wright of Washington, that interesting judicial product of Cincinnati who, as an appointive judge at Washington, threw the network of contempt proceedings around Gompers, Mitchell and Morrison last year, now reaches up for higher game. In a mandamus proceeding to compel a Congressional committee to consider officially something which it had decided not to consider, Judge Wright holds that his court has jurisdiction over them. His argument is worthy the lawyer of the anecdote who was a dabbler in many subjects, and of whom a candid friend therefore said that he would know a little of everything if he only knew a little law.

Graciously conceding that his court could not interfere with the action of Congress, this interesting judge nevertheless holds that it can interfere with a Congressional Committee, because Congress has no power to delegate its duties to committees. It will be an instructive spectacle, the appearance before Judge Wright of a Congressional committee to purge itself of contempt of court!

Old Mexico.

Our next visit was to the National Capital or Halls of Montezuma.
The building was commenced in 1842, and many additions have been added to it since. It fronts on the Plaza Mayor, is 675 feet front, and extends down the side streets about the same distance.
In it are the executive offices, senate chambers, treasury and bar-acks rooms for two regiments of soldiers. The presidential apartments are magnificent. The most noted rooms are the Halls of Ambassadors. The walls are hung with fine paintings of Mexico's illustrious men, and among them is a fine picture of George Washington. On presenting our pass we were conducted all through the building from end to end.

We next went through the Bishop's Palace, another magnificent building. Next, to the Cathedral San Francisco. This is the largest and most splendid building in Mexico. It is built on the ancient site of an Aztec Temple. The corner stone was laid in 1573 and finished in 1626, and cost two million dollars. The altar and chapels are ornamented with gold and cost several hundred thousand dollars. There are two immense pipe organs. A great many fine paintings of eminent people are hung on the walls, that no money could buy. I can only give a general outline in a letter like this. One must see it to realize its immensity and fineness.
We next took in the Mint Palace, Yturbe—so named from one of the old Emperors. Next to the National Museum, where are stored thousands of old relics, too numerous to mention, next the old aqueducts, and next the post-office, which cost $3,000,000.

Our next trip was to the penitentiary, which is a comparatively new building and one of the cleanest prisons that I ever was in. The crimes for which the prisoners are there for are classed first, second and third degree.
Homicide is the first and the prisoners of this class are confined in a cell for three years and are never allowed out only an hour each day, in a large hall for exercise, and then under the eyes of a guard. The second and third class are put into the shops at once to work. They make shoes, furniture, baskets and sombreros, or Mexican hats, which are plated by hand. Each prisoner has a card under glass in a frame hung up in his cell, which tells what he is there for, how long, and that he is allowed two days off in every thirty for good behavior. There have been eighty-two deaths from various causes in the prison.
When a man dies he is taken to the dissecting room and his head is removed. The body is then buried in the prison yard. The head is put up in a row where the others are who have died before.
The head is labeled with the crime and cause of death, and is studied by criminologists, but it is a gruesome sight to see eighty-two grinning skulls. The officials are very gentlemanly and pleasant to visitors who have passes, but of course, expect the tip of "uno pesos." This custom of tipping is universal in Mexico.

Our next trip is to the Hot Springs, and the Park, and the Volcano Popocatepetl, which is all one trip. The Park is at the base of the mountain and where you leave the cars for the burro trip up the mountain. We engaged the burros and a guide for $3 a piece and up we started.
The equipment consists of a small burro, a pack for a saddle, strapped on his loins and a pair of rope stirrups, with a girl behind his hams, and no bridle.
Each burro is supposed to follow the one ahead but he doesn't always do so. We got along pretty well until we reached the snow line. I was pretty tired and I told my next neighbor so. He said, "Just wait until we start back down," and hinted that I would not be able to move for a week from soreness. I made up my mind that right here is where Bill stops. We held a caucus and several others stopped with me.
The others went a mile or so farther. The Mexican sent a boy to return with us. Let me say to your readers, that here is the grandest view on this earth.
Mexico City and about twenty other towns lay in plain sight, apparently right at your feet. The view is good for at least a hundred miles, with a glass. I did not enjoy it as I should for thinking of that down trip and its consequences. But we started. The trail is a narrow one and a rocky one, cliffs on one side and a deep canyon on the other. There are loose stones in the path and when your burro steps on one he stops suddenly, throws his head down and smells of it, and maybe rolls it out of the way before he will go farther. If you don't go over his head you are lucky. But after five hours walking and riding, we are back to the park and on our train. In an hour we are at Mexico City and in our hotel.

Mr. Hilburn.

Ed Register—I have located at Stroud since my last letter to the REGISTER. This is a sawmill town on the Iron Mountain railroad, in Hot Springs county. The railroad station, however, is known as Oak Leaf. This country is low (and flat but is said to be healthy for its appearance. The sawmill has a capacity of about fifty thousand feet per day.

But I didn't start in to write you a description of the country. I notice you have a correspondent at Batesville, and I wish to thank him for his kind notice of my articles, for we socialists have so few such coming our way. I notice also that your Arcadia correspondent complains of the cost of living but said he would not now speak of the remedy. I wish he had, as I like to know the ideas of others on questions of great public interest. The attempt of some well-meaning people to worry the meat trust by refusing to eat meat for a "whole month," seems to me about as wise an action as knocking flies off ones face with a hammer. If the meat sales fall off the price of cattle comes down and packing house employees are laid off, or put on short time, and there you are.
But if Uncle Samuel would take over the packing plants or start others in competition with the octopus, and sell meat at actual cost of production, cattle men might receive better prices for cattle and packing house employees receive higher wages, and still let the public have meat much cheaper than at present. But—that would be Socialistic and the majority are opposed to Socialism.
"Most wise" they vote against it, and that is what counts.

They "ouss" the trust ticket 364 days in the year and then go and vote a trust ticket the other one.
They are like the Irishman the farmer sent to grease the wagon.
"Well, did you grease the wagon?" said the farmer. "Shure," said Pat, "I greased it all over except four little places that I couldn't get to."

Yes, let the nation own the trusts.
The trusts are good things—for those on the inside. Then let us put all the people on the inside and use these great labor saving devices for the benefit of humanity.
If we quit beef to spite the beef trust, then why not quit salt to spite the salt trust, flour to spite the miller's trust, and so on down the line—even to the coffin trust.
Let's be cremated. But we would have a crematory trust inside of a year.

"A private monopoly," says W. J.
Bryan "is indefensible," and so it is, but the P. O. business is a public monopoly and works O. K., only where private interests are allowed to graft off of it. Let us increase the list by adding the railroads, the coal mines and the oil fields. We stopped the trade in human flesh, let us stop the trade in the means of life, so that every child born in the image of God may have an equal opportunity in the struggle for existence.
F. P. HILBURN.

A Judicial Usurpation.

It is not usual for the Senators of the United States to pay more attention to fundamental principles of free parliamentary government than the representatives direct from the people in the Lower House do. But they seem to have done so last week in resisting an order of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia on the members of a joint committee on printing, to appear in mandamus proceedings brought against them in relation to their legislative committee duties. The Senate directed its members of the joint committee to pay no attention to the Court's order. The House, by a vote in which the Republicans seem to have been joined by numerous Democrats, practically ordered its members to appear.
The particular matter at issue in the proceedings may not seem to have been important, but the principle which the Senate followed is the only one which can ensure legislative independence of the Courts and is very important.
Under our system of written constitutions, the Courts surely have already a dangerous power to block legislative action. If parliamentary privileges are to be thrown also into their control, and representatives of the people engaged in their legislative work, to be as to that work, directly or incidentally at the beck and call of an arbitrary judge of a local court in Washington, things have come to an evil pass.—The Public.

Polishing by Hot Air.

The marvels of friction are infinite.
The use of the sand blast for polishing metals is quite a recent invention, and now it is followed by that of a blast of simple hot air. It is the velocity that gives the polishing power.
The articles to be treated are placed in a basket in a centrifugal machine driven at a very high speed and heated air is blown from a pipe through the basket. A high polish is thus produced very rapidly.

Nickel plated articles that have become tarnished are made bright in a few minutes. Wet metal trash from the bath needs no preliminary drying, for the current of air dries and polishes at the same moment. It is only necessary to so pack the articles that the air reaches them on all sides.—

(Action to enforce lien for taxes.)

Now at this day comes the plaintiff, J. N.
Lewis, collector of the revenue of Iron county, Missouri, and shows by the return of the Sheriff on the summons heretofore issued to Iron County, Missouri, that the defendant, John W. Usher, cannot be found in the said Iron County, Missouri, and the court being satisfied that process cannot be served upon said defendant, and, therefore, cannot be summoned in this action by the ordinary process of law in this state; it is, therefore, ordered by the judge of this court that publication be made notifying said defendants that an action has been commenced against them in the circuit court of said county, the object and general nature of which is to enforce the lien of the state of Missouri, on the following real estate, belonging to the said defendants, for back taxes for the years 1904, 1905, 1906 and 1907, to wit:

also, the north half of lot three of the northwest quarter of section 18, township 33, in Iron county, Missouri.

(An itemized statement in the nature of a tax bill showing the amount of taxes, interest and costs now due on said real estate for the years aforesaid, amounting in the aggregate to the sum of $17.68, is filed with said petition as provided by law.)

And unless they be and appear at the next term of said court, to be held for the county of Iron, and State of Missouri, at the courthouse in said county, on the fourth Monday in April next, (1910), and on or before the third day thereof (if the term shall so long continue; and, if not, then before the end of the term), and plead, answer or demur to said plaintiff's petition, the same will be taken as confessed, judgment rendered in accordance with the prayer of said petition, and said real estate, or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy said judgment, interests and costs, be sold under a special fieri facias to be issued thereon.

It is further ordered that a copy hereof
